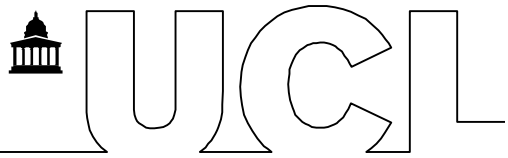
UCL INSTITUTE OF THE AMERICAS



Rethinking Military Nationalism: New Perspectives on the Revolutionary Government of the Armed Forces, Peru, 1968-1975

Friday, 4 October 2013

UCL Institute of the Americas in collaboration with LSE IDEAS

10.00-10.10: Welcome

10.10-11.30: First panel
Chair: Paulo Drinot

Jaymie Heilman (University of Alberta): 'Through Fire and Blood: The Peruvian Peasant Confederation and the Velasco Regime'

Lourdes Hurtado (Franklin College), 'Velasco and the Army's Cultural Repertoire in the 1970s'

Mark Rice (Stonybrook University): 'Ruins, Hotels, and Hippies: Velasco-era Tourism Development and Conflict in Cusco'

Discussion

11.30-12.00: Coffee

12.00-13.30: Second panel
Chair: Charles Walker

Stefano Varese (University of California, Davis) 'De la represión a la revolución: el velasquismo en la Amazonía (1968-1975)'

Mark Carey (University of Oregon), 'Watering the Desert, Feeding the Revolution: Velasco's Influence on Water Law and Agriculture on Peru's North-Central Coast'

Nathan Clarke, (Minnesota State University Moorhead), "They Treated us like Human Beings": The Fishermen of Chimbote and the Peruvian Revolution

Anna Cant (University of Cambridge), 'Promoting the Revolution: A View from the Regions'

Discussion

13.30-15.00 Lunch (only for speakers)

15.00-16.30: Third panel
Chair: Jaymie Heilman

Charles Walker (University of California-Davis), 'The General and His Rebel: Juan Velasco Alvarado and the Reinvention of Tupac Amaru II'

Carlos Aguirre (University of Oregon), 'The Second Liberation? Military Nationalism and the Sesquicentennial Commemoration of Peruvian Independence, 1821–1971'

Adrian Lerner (Yale University), 'Who Drove the Revolution's Hearse? Political Struggles in General Velasco's Funerals'

Paulo Drinot (University College London): 'Remembering Velasco: Contested Memories of the Revolutionary Government of the Armed Forces'

Discussion

16:30-17:00 Break

17.00-18.30: Keynote lecture
George Philip (London School of Economics): 'Velasco and the Military, 1973-75'

The Institute of the Americas at UCL gratefully acknowledges the support of the Embassy of Peru in the United Kingdom, the Society for Latin American Studies, and LSE IDEAS