First Aid Certificate Requalifiction

Overview

Certificates for the purposes of first aid at work last for three years. Before the certificate expires, first aiders will need to undertake a requalification course to obtain another certificate. Once a certificate has expired the first aider is no longer considered to be competent to act as a workplace first aider.

Your First Aid at Work (FAW) qualification is maintained by completing a two day First Aid at Work Requalification course before the expiry date of the current certificate.

The Emergency First Aid at Work (EFAW) qualification is maintained by attending another one day EFAW course before the expiry date of the current certificate. If you have a current certificate you will be contacted by Safety Services two months before your certificate is due to expire. For further information please contact:
safetytraining@ucl.ac.uk

For

Qualified First Aiders with a valid First Aid at Work certificate who wish to update their skills and requalify as a first aider in the workplace.

First aiders need to be:
- Available to go immediately and rapidly to an emergency call out
- Available to attend the full day(s) training course
- Willing to attend training to refresh their skills and to retain the certification

Scope

Training will cover the topics of the full First Aid at Work course in sufficient detail to ensure that participants are competent to retain their First Aid at Work certificate. For a full course description see the website link:
www.redcrosstraining.co.uk

How to book

First Aid Certificate Requalification (FAW): please complete the booking form and email it to safetytraining@ucl.ac.uk

Course Details

First Aid Training courses are provided by the British Red Cross at their Euston training facility.

Two day course Time: 09.00 – 17.00
Please note the course starts promptly at 09.00 and late arrivals may be refused.

Cost

Free to UCL staff. The full course fee will be charged to your department if you fail to attend when booked on the course event.

Further Information

Joining instructions will be sent a month before the course giving you further information about the course, including a map of the training location. Refreshments are provided but lunch is not provided.

Contact Safety Services on 020 3108 8592 or UCL ext. 58592
Email: safetytraining@ucl.ac.uk