“Life at the boundary between science and policy”

Dr Tom Wells, Head of Health in the Government Office for Science

Thursday 23rd November 2017

6pm

Cruciform Building, Foyer Seminar Room 1, UCL Bloomsbury Campus

There will be food and drinks after the talk so you can ask questions and meet the speaker as well as fellow students and staff.

The UCL PostGradClub is a forum to allow students and postdocs to hear from and meet a broad range of speakers. The committee is made up of PhD students registered in the UCL Division of Infection and Immunity but is open to all. The club places an emphasis on providing insight into a broad range of topics and fields to inform people about future career options, especially those that lab scientists might be less aware of. There will be food and drinks after the talk so you can ask questions and meet the speaker as well as fellow students and staff.
