CONFERENCE ON

THE REGULATORY STATE: CONSTITUTIONAL IMPLICATIONS

Information for participants

Venues

The conference will be held in the Offices of Clifford Chance LLP in Canary Wharf, London (address on the programme).

The welcome reception on Thursday November 13 and the optional Conference Dinner on Friday November 14 will both be held at UCL in Bloomsbury (addresses on the programme).

Most of the speakers and some other participants will be staying at the Ibis Hotel, Greenwich (see hotel details below).

See next section for information about public transport between these places.

Public transport

Transport between Bloomsbury and Canary Wharf (Clifford Chance LLP offices) is by underground (Jubilee line) and/or the Docklands Light Railway to Heron Quays station. It should take about 35 minutes door to door to travel from one to the other.

Transport between Greenwich and Canary Wharf is by Docklands Light Railway to Heron Quays and takes about 20 minutes door to door.

Transport between Greenwich and Bloomsbury/UCL is by surface train (every 30 minutes) and underground and takes about 45 minutes door to door.

Eurostar terminus - St Pancras International Station – is a few minutes walk from the UCL Faculty of Laws and hotels in the Bloomsbury area, or 30 minutes by underground/DLR to Canary Wharf or 40 minutes by underground/DLR/surface train to Greenwich.

City Airport – is twenty minutes by the Docklands Light Railway to the offices of Clifford Chance (Heron Quays station), about 35 minutes by DLR to Greenwich (Cutty Sark station) and about 45 minutes by DLR and underground to Bloomsbury (Euston, Euston Square, Goodge Street or Russell Square stations).

Other London airports (Heathrow, Gatwick, Stansted and Luton) have train links to central London, from where underground, Docklands Light Railway and surface train routes take passengers to Bloomsbury, Canary Wharf or Greenwich.

Places

Canary Wharf is in the recently developed London Docklands, on the Thames' north bank, east of the City. The architecture, and the setting on water are spectacular. It is served by the Jubilee line and the Docklands Light Railway.

Greenwich is across the river from Canary Wharf, and is served by the Docklands Light Railway (15 minutes from Canary Wharf, connection with Jubilee line) and surface trains to Charing Cross/London Bridge (15 minutes). Greenwich contains Christopher Wren's Old Royal Naval College with chapel and painted hall, Inigo Jones' Queen's House, Flamstead House (The Old Royal Observatory), Greenwich Park, the new Planetarium, the National Maritime Museum, St Alphege Hawksmoor church, flea markets, etc. All of these places are within easy walking distance of one another and of the DLR and surface train stations.

Bloomsbury is an elegant largely 18th century area of central London with many garden squares. The British Library, the British Museum and University College London are situated there. It is served by the Central, Northern, Victoria, District and Circle and Piccadilly lines. Each line connects with all others, the DLR and surface trains.
