Series Reviewer Guidelines

Please base your report on the following points and write it in a separate Word document.

Proposal

- Does this series offer an original contribution to the field? Is it breaking new ground and, if so, how?

- Does it engage with recent scholarship?

- What are the strengths of the series? You may want to consider structure, organisation, coherence and presentation of material; scope, coverage and breadth of appeal; and the timeliness and likely shelf-life of the research.

- Do you have any suggestions to improve the proposed series?

Market and Competition

- Who is the main readership of the books in this series (in terms of field and level)? You may also want to consider the series’ interdisciplinary and/or international appeal.

- Would the books in this series be suitable for the student market? If so, would you adopt/recommend them for any courses you teach?

- How does this series compare to other book series in this area (in terms of, for example, content and innovation)?