Chapter 14: Teaching and Learning

Equality, Diversity and Inclusion

UCL has placed a high value on inclusivity and diversity since its inception in 1826, when it became the first English University to admit students regardless of their race, class or religion and also the first to admit men and women on an equal basis.

We aim to acknowledge, understand, and tackle structural inequities and unjust social power imbalances that affect our communities across the institution. This means recognising how we got here and what needs to be done to ensure equity, inclusion and belonging for those who are not systemically privileged by our society.

The Equality, Diversity and Inclusion website is an information resource for staff and students at UCL and contains links to UCL's action plans as well as detailed information about harassment and bullying, Inclusion Leads, equality networks, training opportunities and events.
