In the Alumni News column, a small section on the previous page turns to the present one. The page begins with a reminder to connect and share on digital Portico magazine, followed by a need to ensure that subscribers continue to receive news and events updates. A call to action to be a part of exciting changes to alumni communications is featured.

The main content of the page discusses a chance to win a creative class subscription and showcases the #ChangePossible zine, which highlights the creative responses of UCL's community to the pandemic. There is an invitation to share sustainability stories.

The page also contains a story about Tres Seippel (Bartlett, 2012), who is connecting alumni groups across the USA and building alumni presence in New York. It mentions that Tres is a part of the UCL Alumni Online Community and shares a story of his success in growing the New York group.

An article discusses Alumni News, which covers the response to the pandemic. It mentions that the Alumni Online Community has been active in supporting the students and alumni.

The page also highlights the UCL on demand platform and the Globally United video series, which features interviews with alumni sharing stories of how they are making a difference. It includes a story about Eva Bianchi, who took the opportunity to start learning the Italian language while in lockdown.

The page concludes with a call to action to nominate yourself or your loved one for the Alumni reunions, and a reminder to watch the UCL Alumni website for more news and updates.

The page ends with a reminder to unsubscribe by clicking the link provided, and contact information for the Alumni Office.
