

A Conversation with Patricia Hayes

University of the Western Cape (UWC)

Tamar Garb will be in conversation with Patricia Hayes, Professor in Visual History & Theory in the Centre for Humanities Research, University of the Western Cape, Cape Town, South Africa. This marks the recent appearance of the book she co-edited, 'Ambivalent: Photography and Visuality in African History' (Ohio, 2019). The conversation will look at theoretical and historiographical debates around photography and its histories in Africa with special attention to questions of the public, the source, the archive, colonial legacy and new readings of old images.

Tuesday 23rd February @ 5pm
