Ability to collaboratively engage a person with the intervention plan

- An ability to engage a person in a collaborative discussion of the options open to them (which may include medical attention), informed by the assessment, the understanding emerging from the assessment, and their aims and goals.

- An ability to convey information about treatment options in a manner that is tailored to a person’s capacities, context and circumstances and that helps them to raise and discuss queries and/or concerns.

- An ability to provide a person with sufficient information about the intervention options open to them, such that they are:
  - aware of the range of options available to people in the service
  - in a position to make an informed choice from the options available to them.

- An ability to ensure that a person has a clear understanding of the course of action being offered to them (e.g. the broad content of a service offer and the way this usually progresses).

- While maintaining a positive stance, an ability to convey a realistic sense of:
  - the effectiveness and scope of different options
  - any challenges associated with specific courses of action.

- An ability to use judgement to determine whether the person’s agreement to pursue a particular course of action:
  - is based on a collaborative choice
  - appears to be a passive agreement or an agreement which they experience as imposed on them (and if so, an ability to address this).
