JEVONS INSTITUTE FOR COMPETITION LAW AND ECONOMICS

Debate:
The Implications of Microsoft Judgment

1st November 2007 from 3 - 8pm

The Court of First Instance's Microsoft judgment of 17 September is a landmark decision that will influence European antitrust enforcement for years to come.

The Jevons Institute at University College London is organising a debate on 1 November to discuss the judgment based on a considerate evaluation of all the nuances and implications of a complex case.

The event will be chaired by Chief Judge Douglas Ginsburg, US Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit and Distinguished Judicial Visitor at the Faculty of Laws, UCL.

Speakers include:

Sir John Vickers, Oxford University and Former Chairman of the Office of Fair Trading

R. Hewitt Pate, Former Assistant Attorney General for Antitrust, U.S. Dept. of Justice; Head, Hunton & Williams Global Competition Practice Group

Daniel Beard, Monckton Chambers

Anthony Whelan, European Commission – Commissioner Kroes Cabinet

James Flynn QC, Brick Court Chambers

Kelyn Bacon, Brick Court Chambers

John Fingleton, Chief Executive, Office of Fair Trading

The event will begin at 2.30pm with registration and finish, with a drinks reception, at 7.30pm.
