

Open Access for the REF: Key information

The open access policy for the next REF applies to articles and conference papers accepted after 1 April 2016. All researchers must upload their papers to UCL's Research Publications Service (RPS), or they will not be eligible for the next REF. Contact the Open Access Team (open-access@ucl.ac.uk) if you have any questions.

- All UCL authors are required to maintain a list of their publications in UCL's Research Publications Service (RPS).
- It is best practice to upload your accepted manuscript as soon as it is accepted for publication. This may involve quickly creating a manual record in RPS before you can upload your publication to it.
- The final deadline for uploading is three months after the date of first online publication.
- You should monitor your list of publications in RPS to check whether manuscripts have been uploaded (see our 'Has my paper been uploaded?' guide).
- In some disciplines, RPS finds and retrieves details of papers from databases like Scopus and Web of Science, after publication. Regular searches will be made when your RPS search settings are properly configured (see our 'RPS Search Settings' guide). Publication details taken from these databases will be merged with records created manually in RPS.
- When RPS finds a new publication, you may need to 'claim' it (see our 'Claiming Publications in RPS' and 'Automatic publication claiming' guides). However you should not wait for RPS to find your publications before uploading your manuscripts, as this may happen later than three months after online publication.
- Uploading manuscripts is easy and should only take a minute.

- Your accepted manuscript is the version after peer-review, but before publisher typesetting (copyright means that the published version cannot be used). See our 'What is the final accepted manuscript?' guide. The manuscript will be made available through Green Open Access in UCL Discovery, UCL's open access repository, after the publisher's delay period has passed (usually 6-24 months).
- If your work is published with Gold open access on the publishers website, under a licence that permits copying and reuse, you do not need to upload it to RPS. UCL can pay for Gold open access if:
 - your work is funded by a UCL grant from UKRI or the Wellcome Trust and you publish in fully open access journals or in some subscription journals (where a one-off payment unlocks otherwise paywalled content) under a licence allowing unrestricted access and re-use (CC BY);
 - you publish in a fully open access journal: funds are allocated on a first-come-first-served basis, providing that paper lists a UCL corresponding author and open access funding is not available from any research funders;
 - transformative subscription deals – all UCL authors can currently publish Gold open access at no extra cost in UCL's transformative subscription deals with Springer, Royal Society of Chemistry and Institute of Physics, providing that paper lists a UCL corresponding author.
