Finding Journals

Points to note:-

- Typing an abbreviated journal title into Explore usually won't work so look it up in one of the links provided in the 'Collections' tab at www.ucl.ac.uk/library/subject-support/guides/reference or ask for help
- Where you see the word "Pers" in the Catalogue as in "Geosciences Pers" this is an abbreviation of the word periodicals which is just another name for journals

- If you want to know what journal articles have been published on a particular topic you can search a specialist database which is more focused on your subject so see www.ucl.ac.uk/library/electronic-resources/database

Looking for a journal title in Explore

www.ucl.ac.uk/library/explore

"Locations" = Collection(s) or Libraries where you will find the journal with details of dates held.

The screenshot shows the UCL Library Services Explore search interface. The search term 'museum international' has been entered into the search bar. The results page displays 1 result (of 43 total) for 'Journal titles'. The result is 'Museum international' (Unesco, Oxford : Blackwell c1993-). A link 'May be available - click Locations' is present. Below the result, there is a 'Locations' panel showing three options: Archaeology, IOE, and Stores, each marked as 'May be available'. The page also includes navigation links like 'New Search', 'Find Databases', 'E-journals', 'Help', and 'Previous Searches'.

By clicking on the [+] to the left hand side of “Archaeology” you can find details of volumes held in this location:-

How to physically locate journals

- To find the journal on the shelves within collections consult the “Subject Locations” guide, follow signs or floorplans, or ask a member of Library Staff
- Journals are shelved in alphabetical order so Journal of Geology, for example, will be under “J” and the shelf arrangement will ignore words such as “of”
- Many journals are now kept in our Store outside London but they can be ordered for next-day delivery to several of our libraries. You can fill in a Store Request Form at the top of the Explore Home Page or via www.ucl.ac.uk/library/stores

E-journals

You can access e-journals via Explore or via the dedicated ejournals web pages on UCL Library Services' website www.ucl.ac.uk/library/electronic-resources/ejournal-faq

Usually you can click “View Online” to the left of the “Locations” tab for journals in electronic format but sometimes there is a separate record for this below the print holdings:

The screenshot shows the UCL Library Services Explore search interface. The search term 'museum international' has been entered. The results page displays 1-10 of 43 entries for 'Journal titles', sorted by relevance. The first result is 'Museum international' (Unesco, Oxford : Blackwell c1993). It includes a thumbnail, a 'May be available - click Locations' link, and 'Locations' and 'Details' buttons. Below this, another result for 'Museum international' is shown, featuring an 'Online access' link and 'View Online' and 'Details' buttons. A red arrow points to the 'View Online' button for the second result. The footer contains the SFX@UCL logo.

SFX@UCL provides links to electronic versions of a journal and to specific articles, and you will find this in addition to the “View Online” tab but they usually lead to the same place.
