

Intercalated BSc Application Guidelines

Please read carefully the following application process guidelines if you are considering applying to Intercalated BSc Programme (iBSc) at UCL. If you have any questions about completing the application form please email medicaladmissions@ucl.ac.uk.

1. Identify the degree programme at UCL you wish to study

Applicants can select two programmes from the options listed on our UCL iBSc webpages. Please list your choices in order of preference in the space provided on the application form.

Please note that students already on UCL's MBBS programme have priority for allocation to our iBSc programmes. If a programme has filled all of its available places with internal students as of the end of March, then we will not be offering places to external applicants.

2. Check the entry requirements

Before applying please check that you meet the entry requirements for iBSc study. You must be:

- enrolled on a UK MBBS course.
- successfully completed or about to complete 2 years of a UK MBBS course. If you are currently in your second year of study and you are successful in getting a place to study with us, a condition of your offer will be to pass your 2nd year of study.
- It is at the discretion of individual iBSc programmes if they wish to accept students where they have completed more than two years of MBBS training. If you are made an offer, then successfully passing your current year of study will be made a condition of offer.
- hold GCSE English Language and Mathematics at grade C or 5.
- have achieved a minimum of ABB in your A levels or equivalent.

Individual programme requirements

Please note for iBSc Mathematics, Computers and Medicine you must have achieved grade A in A level Mathematics or equivalent.

Please note that for iBSc Medical Physics and Biomedical Engineering A level Mathematics and Physics (or equivalent) are preferred subjects.

3. Check the application period

The iBSc application period is open for external applications between 1 February 2020 – 31 March 2020.

Applications submitted after the deadline may still be considered subject to programme availability.

Please note that applications will be considered as we receive them until the course is full.

4. Making your application

Currently all applications must be made via our PDF Application Form available to download from the UCL iBSc webpage. You are able to make two programme choices only and you must provide two corresponding personal statements.

As well as completing the application form you will need to provide the following:

Your full academic transcript from your Medical School showing a minimum of two years of study.

Two references from people who are able to comment on your suitability for the programmes for which you have applied. Please use the reference form located in the Application PDF. One of your references must be from an academic member of staff at your current medical school.

Personal statement for your two programme choices. There is a dedicated section on the application form for you to insert your statements.

A letter from your home institution confirming that they are happy to release you for this period of study. The letter must be on institution headed paper, stamped, dated and signed.

Your application will not be considered unless we have all the specified documentation.

5. Submitting your application

Once you have completed all sections of the application form, please submit via email to medicaladmissions@ucl.ac.uk together with your academic transcript and host institution letter.

Your references should be submitted to medicaladmissions@ucl.ac.uk directly by your referees, using their professional email address (e.g. name@institution.ac.uk).

6. What happens next?

Applicants will receive an email once we have received the application. If we have any queries regarding your application then we will contact you directly.

If you are accepted you will be sent an offer email and invited to reply to your offer. Once you've accepted your offer and confirmed that you will be attending UCL, more information will be sent about starting with us.
