About the Museum

The Emigration Museum in Gdynia is a local government cultural institution. It gathers and exhibits collections presenting the history of emigration from Polish lands. We are also committed to the dissemination of knowledge on migration processes over the centuries.

The mission of the Museum is to reconstruct lives of emigrants and tell their stories. It applies both to famous and renowned figures known for scientific, sports, economic or artistic achievements, as well as millions of anonymous emigrants who left in search of a better life. The Museum's ambition is to popularize knowledge about various aspects of migratory movements, their conditions, consequences and the impact on the formation of Polish diaspora clusters, as well as the mutual relationships between these clusters and their country of origin. We would also like to create a forum for researchers and those interested in the issues of migration and Polish communities abroad.

The first scientific conference organized by the Emigration Museum in 2016 was devoted to the issues of Poles and Polish communities in Latin America. The event was attended by nearly 40 researchers, who represented more than 20 scientific centres and institutions from Poland, Brazil, Argentina, Austria, Israel and the United States. Continuing this activity, last year, the Museum along with the partners: the Migration Research Committee of the Polish Academy of Sciences, Polish History Museum, The Polish Institute of Arts & Sciences of America, Polish American Historical Association and Polish Association for Canadian Studies organised the international scientific conference on the Polish presence in North America, which was attended by nearly 70 participants from Poland, the United States, Canada, France and the Netherlands.

We hope that, as it was the case last year, the Emigration Museum in Gdynia will provide the conference participants with an inspiring space conducive to creative and critical exchange of views and the latest research findings.
