Innovations in Corruption Studies

edited by Alena Ledeneva, Roxana Bratu and Philipp Köker

£10.00 (paperback)

The key question driving innovations in corruption studies is why anti-corruption reforms do not work.

This special issue emerges from the international seminar series on innovations in corruption studies in Europe and beyond held by the School of Slavonic and East European Studies, University College London, between October 2015 and March 2016. Its purpose was to highlight innovations in the field of corruption studies regarding theory, methodology, analysis and policy.
